

ABSTRACT

A protective device, for the confinement of explosive objects or objects suspected to be such, comprises a sleeve open at the axial ends thereof with a layer of material of the blasting-mat type. The sleeve is embodied such as to be placed in a position and remain upright to 5 enclose a suspect object resting on a surface.